

There are many types of Salamanders, about _____.

Salamanders are normally brightly colored.

Salamanders range from ____ to ____ inches long and retain their tails into adulthood.

Mostly found in _____, Europe and _____.

Salamanders are born with _____ but as they grow they develop _____.

Salamanders eat Worms, _____, _____, spiders.

When they grow they lose their skin and eat it.

Salamanders live in _____ when they are small and when they grow up they do leave the water but have to stay near water for when _____

According to fossil records, Salamanders are at least _____ years old.

“They made it through several major _____ events. They made it through the event that killed the dinosaurs. Yet today, along with other _____, salamanders are disappearing and we really don’t know why.”

-Shubin